A New Years' Prayer

As we begin this new year, many of us will make our traditional resolutions, we will have an idea of what we would like to accomplish and perhaps even make goals to achieve those plans. However, as most years go, those resolutions fall by the wayside and we continue to live as we had in the past; continuing in the same habits and leading a lifestyle that we are accustomed to living. Making changes in life can be difficult. Whether we seek better health or simply improved life skills, the self-discipline needed for change is often lacking behind our desire.

As believers, we are in a constant battle to do the will of God and fight off the desires of our sinful nature. Once again we see discipline lacking behind our desire to please Him. As we begin this new year, let's resolve to surrender and give up. Not giving up on our resolutions, (at least not yet) but surrendering to ourselves and our will.

Lord, I thank you for your gentle mercy and untiring love. Jesus I thank you that not only does your death save me, it also gives me the pattern of my life. You have called me to a life of saying "yes" to you and "no" to my own will. So I surrender to you, Lord. By your grace I will do whatever you want.
